9:00 – 10:30 am Fiduciary Duties
The role of the Trustee is unique. While trustees are not involved in the day-to-day management of pension funds, they represent the beneficiaries and stakeholders, and are expected to exercise oversight and steer the general direction of the pension fund. Their role is flexible yet constrained by duties that have evolved in the Anglo-American legal landscape over a long period of history. In this session we will discuss those duties and their rationale with specific attention to our changing understanding of those duties in the modern landscape.

11:00 am – 12:30 pm Environmental, Social, and Governance (ESG) Investment Factors
In recent years, the investment community has paid increasing attention to a broader set of the drivers of portfolio performance and have observed the impact of factors that are not always explicit in the disclosures and financials that have traditionally been provided under the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB). A growing awareness of the Environmental and Social impact of companies and their Governance structures has led to a rapidly expanding body of research. This is motivated not just by attention to firm performance but also a concern for the impact of corporate activity on the broader community. In this session we will review recent insights into how ESG factors impact firm performance and the relationship between firm performance and ESG policies.

We live in an increasingly connected world, where every organization is connected to the internet in countless ways, which dramatically expands the attack surface of those organizations, making them vulnerable to hackers, ransomware, phishing, and other dangers. As the bad actors become increasingly sophisticated, so too do the vulnerable organizations, and the threat is not limited to private corporations. Public entities have also been victims of cyberattacks. In this session we will discuss the threats, both new and familiar, as well as the actions that can be taken to protect against those threats.

9:00 – 10:30 am  Alternative Investments

Traditional pension fund investing focused primarily on fixed income and equity investments. In the past 20 years, as the investment opportunity set has grown and as public pension funds have become more sophisticated, there has been a market shift toward “alternative” investments, which includes real estate, commodities, hedge funds, but mostly private equity. While private equity has enabled the expansion of the risk/return frontier for pension funds, it comes with questions about transparency, fee structure and governance. In this session we will discuss the complications that arise from investing in non-liquid and sometimes considered opaque investment vehicles.

- Yup Kim, Head of Investments, Private Equity, California Public Employees’ Retirement System

11:00 am – 12:30 pm  The Future of Pension Funds

Pension funds are one of the most impactful financial innovations of our time. They provide income security to millions of retirees, and yet the structure and form of pension funds is continually changing. We have seen a move from defined benefit to defined contribution in many domains while also seeing a shift from liquid to illiquid investments. What does the future hold for pension funds? What are some of the innovations that we are seeing in the world of public pension funds? In this session, we will explore the latest trends and what to watch out for in the world of pension funds.
